Anthony Bill was convicted Friday of rape, kidnapping, false imprisonment, aggravated sodomy, aggravated assault.

Bill was in prison during sentencing March 21, according to WSB-TV Channel 2 news.

Bill's guilt after a trial that began March 2.

Bill, when the deputy was drinking at the Corona bar and restaurant just south of Marietta.

Deputy District Attorney Chuck Boring said Bill became angry at a waitress, an illegal immigrant from El Salvador who accused him of stealing his cellphone, flashed his badge and made her come with him.

Boring said, "that's what this case is about."

Bill lived in the Leadwells apartment complex, where both of them lived, off South Cobb Drive in Marietta. In his own defense, Bill said he had to perform a sex act, then raped her and beat her with a belt, Boring said.

Bill said that the woman, naked and handcuffed, showed up at her grandparents' apartment door that night just as he rode by on his motorcycle, according to trial testimony.

Bill was a prostitute and said Bill had paid her for sex that night.

Bill's attorney, Philip Holloway, said the woman lied about what happened so she could file lawsuits against Bill, Cobb County and the apartment complex.

Holloway also said that being certified as a crime victim by prosecutors allowed the woman to file for a special visa so she and her child could stay in the United States.

Bill, an Iraq war veteran, took the stand in his own defense and denied his guilt, but the jury didn't believe him.
