Two LAPD Cops Allegedly Raped Female Informants, Sex Workers Over Several Years

Two LAPD officers, Luis Valenzuela and James Nichols, are under investigation for reportedly using the threat of arrest to rape at least four women over the course of several years. Two of the women reported working for the officers as confidential informants, while one says she was detained for prostitution and another was allegedly stopped while she was simply out walking.

In a search warrant affidavit released yesterday, an LAPD Internal Affairs officer outlined the allegations against the officers.

DASHBot/Wikimedia Commons

According to the affidavit, the department was first made aware of the officers' alleged behavior in January 2010 when a woman who worked as an informant for Valenzuela and Nichols reported being detained by the plain clothes officers while she was out walking; she was then forced to perform sex acts on one of the men. The investigation was eventually dropped.

A year later, another woman filed a complaint with LAPD supervisors, alleging that Valenzuela raped her under almost identical circumstances. While she was walking down the street in Hollywood, Valenzuela ordered her into his undercover police vehicle or be arrested. Once inside, Valenzuela allegedly told her, "If you don't suck my dick, you're going to jail." He then "grabbed her by the back of her head and forced her to perform oral copulation on him," while Nichols sat in the front seat.

A sex worker also came forward, following an anonymous complaint filed with the department that "unknown LAPD officers were exchanging sexual favors from prostitutes in lieu of arrest." The woman claimed that Nichols raped her twice. Both times he detained and handcuffed her, drove to a secluded area, and pulled out his erect penis. At one point, Nichols allegedly asked the woman, "You don't want to go to jail today, do you?"

Send to Kindle

Additionally, a second confidential informant who worked with Valenzuela and Nichols for over a year claimed that the men insisted on using sex as a bargaining tool as she worked off her arrest.

According to the LA Times:

Sources familiar with the case...said police officials determined from the investigation that there was enough evidence of misconduct to have Nichols and Valenzuela fired.

Under city rules, the chief of police does not have the authority to fire an officer outright. Instead, Chief Charlie Beck ordered discipline hearing panels that will decide if the officers are guilty of the allegations and, if so, whether they should be fired or given a lesser punishment.

Valenzuela, a 16-year department veteran, and Nichols, who has been an officer for nearly 13 years, were suspended with pay during the investigation. They are no longer being paid as they await the disciplinary hearing.

As the officers prepare for the hearing, Nichols' attorney claimed the women "have no credibility."

Libertarians tell us we should support legalizing prostitution because it's "none of our business." But the first thing they do is to make it our business by trying to force us to protect them from being raped. Our police forces should not be wasting their resources protecting hookers from being raped. They should focus on real crime.

The cool thing is that there is now an easy defense to this sort of slander available. Just record all of your on-duty activities.

This is why police unions around the country are pushing for their departments to supply full-time video monitoring for each of their officers. They are doing that, right?

I don't support cops raping prostitutes, it's definitely a violation of professional ethics. But I don't think the government should be wasting our money prosecuting these people.

Catch me, Catch me, if you can!

I am a cop, I have a gun..
My gun and dick both work as one.
I rape and pilage, rob and steal.....
I do about damn what I feel.

Don't mess with me- I'll mow you down
No one is safe when I'm around.
Don't you be walkin' on my street-
I am a member L.A.'s elite.

L.A.P.D. we're number one.
'Protect and serve'- but that's no fun!
From sun up and down again,
we will always get our man!

Oh, he is innocent you say
That's alright... more fun that way
What's that you say? How can that be?
'Cause I commit more crimes than he!

So, catch me, catch me if you can!
When in L.A. I am the man
And hey, my man- I'm no one's fool!
I'm L.A.P.D. and I am cool!

How about when cops rape little children? And there are so many of them who do that... do you support prosecuting pedophile cops? Or putting them in prison? When I worked for the LAPD (as a civilian traffic officer back before women were permitted to be police officers), a nice police officer named Michael Casados was having sex with a teenage explorer scout- as were many other cops in the Hollywood division where I worked... he was suspended but not fired. 10 years later, he was caught a second time with a different 15 year old minor- had been having sex with her for 5 years, so she was 10 when he started raping her. He was fired this time- and given a probation sentence. Perhaps because of people like you (most likely a cop) who thinks that cops ought to be able to have a little fun that other people in society go to prison for doing for decades. You are one sick person XR.

I may be a simpleton here but Law & Order does a good job of showing just how damn near impossible it is to take down members of the Brotherhood who do bad.

Maybe prostitutes and drug dealers have "no credibility" but to me cops who go rogue and abuse their power are worse than the criminals they arrest in the public interest. They're below scum.

I'm guessing abuse of some variation or another is rampant. Is it that much of a stretch to think that?

I'm reminded of The Offspring song LAPD:

When cops are taking care of business I can understand
But the L.A. story's gone way out of hand
Their acts of aggression, they say they're justified
But it seems an obsession has started from the inside
They're shooting anyone who even tries to run
They're shooting little kids with toy guns
Take it to a jury but they don't give a damn
Because the one who tells the truth is always the policeman

Beat all the white trash
Beat whoever you see
Don't need a reason
(We're) L.A.P.D.

Looks like officers Luis Valenzuela and James Nichols have a Nice vacation coming up.

They'll be on paid leave while the trial goes on for about four years.

Then, in the criminal trial, they will waive their right to a jury and be acquitted by a judge (which, for all purposes, is a cop).

I'm tell'n ya. With all the good jobs going to India/China, the only future for our children is

- A. Leave them a lot of Money
- B. Encourage them to join law enforcement

Law Enforcement people will always live with the HAVEs. They will always get to have their children attend schools with the HAVEs. The HAVEs will turn their heads when a Law Enforcement person does something wrong the the little people.

I keep forgetting that. For a peasant a trial by judge is a death sentence, but for a knight it's a guaranteed acquittal.

If we peasants should be guaranteed a trial by jury because the jury can overturn a corrupt judge, a knight should be forced into a trial by jury for the same reason.
