LAWRENCE, Mass. -- A Lawrence police officer facing rape and kidnapping charges has been released on $10,000 cash bail. Chief John Romero says Officer Kevin Sledge was released Friday.

The 46-year-old Sledge, a 15-year veteran, allegedly left his post without permission and picked up an intoxicated 23-year-old woman he came upon on Jackson Street last month. He allegedly sexually assaulted the woman in his car in a parking lot near the police station over a two-hour period before the woman got out of his car and went to the station to report the incident.

Sledge lives in Salem, N.H. He has been placed on paid administrative leave and stripped of his gun and badge. Romero says a termination hearing scheduled for last Friday was postponed at the request of the patrolmen's union's lawyer until later this month.
