SEX COUNTS FOR 2 COPS FELLOW OFFICER, TEEN ARE ALLEGED VICTIMS

BY PETE DONOHUE, MIKE CLAFFEY AND MIGUEL GARCILAZO

Friday, August 15th 1997, 2:02AM

The Police Department, already reeling from accusations of the brutal sexual torture of a prisoner, was hit with two more black eyes yesterday when two cops were arrested in unrelated sexual assaults.

In one case, a 27-year-old Brooklyn transit policeman was locked up after being accused of sodomizing a female officer while on duty early yesterday, police officials said last night.

In the second case, a married Brooklyn housing cop who lives in Queens was charged with repeatedly having sex with a 14-year-old school girl whose father had asked the cop to tutor her.

"The father thought the cop would be a good role model, a good tutor," a law enforcement source said.

The case against Transit Officer Randy Thomas of District 32 came together quickly after a cop told a supervisor that he had forcibly sodomized her about 4 a.m. yesterday.

Investigators from the Internal Affairs Bureau and the Brooklyn district attorney's office spent the day examining the tiny underground room at the Van Siclen Ave. station on the No. 3 line where the attack allegedly occurred.

The area was roped off with crime-scene tape, and the door was covered with fingerprinting dust.

Thomas, 6-foot-1, 260 pounds and a member of the force since 1993, was arrested and suspended at 6 p.m. yesterday.

Also yesterday, Internal Affairs investigators and the Queens district attorney's office brought rape charges against Officer Harry Velasquez, 27, for allegedly having sex with the school girl.

Investigators said the girl's father, asked the officer to help her with her reading because she was having a tough time in school.

Instead, the cop is accused of taking advantage of the girl, who was 12 at the time the alleged sex attacks started.

Velasquez, who has been on the job two years, did not use a weapon or force but was charged with rape because the law deems a minor under 14 unable to give consent, Queens District Attorney Richard Brown said.

Velasquez also was charged with sodomy and endangering the welfare of a child and suspended from the force.

The girl went to Velasquez' home in Jamaica after school and allegedly was assaulted while the cop's wife was at work.

The assaults took place weekly over the past 18 months, officials said.

The girl recently tried to end the sexual activity, cops said, but Velasquez started lurking around her school. This prompted her to report the attacks to her mother.

"She got really scared," a source said.
