FLORENCE | A Florence police captain has been formally charged in a child pornography investigation launched after "unlawful images" were uploaded from a police computer, authorities said.

Capt. Basil Kenny "Ken" Stanley, 49, is charged with using office and home computers to send and receive images of "children engaging in explicit sexual conduct," the Times Daily in Florence reported Tuesday.

Stanley, an officer for more than 26 years, was scheduled for a detention hearing in Huntsville today.

Police Chief Rick Singleton said Stanley passed out twice after he was told about the allegations against him Monday. Stanley has been placed on administrative leave without pay.

The investigation began when the FBI notified Florence police on June 12 about "unlawful images" uploaded from a department computer.

Stanley was taken into FBI custody Monday.
