TOLEDO -- A former TPS campus protection officer charged with having sexual interactions with a teenage student entered an Alford Plea in court Wednesday.

Prosecutors will request no more than eight years in prison for Harry Weatherholt, 51; however, the judge presiding over the case can hand down a sentence of as much as 15 years. In an Alford Plea, the defendant does not admit to having committed a crime, but pleads guilty because he/she does not believe an acquittal will be handed down.

Weatherholt was found guilty on four counts of sexual battery.

Sentencing has been set for April 16.
