Retired NYPD cop Matthew Fanning pleads guilty in kid sex rap

A creepy retired NYPD officer copped Thursday to keeping graphic child porn videos on his home computer.

Matthew Fanning, 48, pleaded guilty to two counts of promoting a sexual performance by a child and faces up to 10 years in prison when he's sentenced next month.

The porn showed kids as young as 3 years olds having sex with adults.

"These are real children who were abused and degraded, leaving them with physical and emotional scars that will last a lifetime," said Queens District Attorney Richard Brown.

Fanning retired on a 75% disability pension from the NYPD. He was arrested in February 2008 when he attempted to pay a preteen girl he met on the Internet for sex.

He used the screen name "gunrunlover" to send his pervy images across the Web.

A stash of weapons that included a rifle, shotgun and some 1,500 rounds of ammunition was seized from Fanning's South Ozone Park home at the time of his arrest.
