A Former Collier County deputy accused of molesting a teenage boy in 2010 will not serve jail time for the allegations.

Charles Bullock pled no contest in court Monday morning. He must serve two years of probation and must give up his law enforcement license. If he violates his probation, he could face up to 10 years in prison.

The state acknowledged the alleged victim's family wanted prison time for Bullock in the past. But they say attempts to contact them prior to the plea deal were unsuccessful.

Top Naples defense attorney Jerry Berry says there were "inconsistencies" in the alleged victim's story before the state lost touch with him and his family.

"It isn't fair. It isn't fair to Chuck Bullock that he was arrested. It isn't fair to Chuck Bullock that he had to plead any charges. When you look at the facts carefully, I've been through the deposition of the alleged victim and there's a clear credibility issue with the allegations made by the young man," he said.

The alleged incidents occurred in April of 2010 when the then 15-year-old boy told Naples police officers that Bullock peered over a bathroom stall in the Coastland Center Mall while he was urinating.

A report then states, "Once inside the restroom, the male subject commanded juvenile victim to pull down his pants, or he would pull them down for him."

According to the report, there were three occasions in which the two met up and Bullock performed oral sex on him.

The alleged incidents, witnessed by a mall janitor, launched a flurry of accusations.

Mall employees said they had seen Bullock staring at men while they used the urinal on multiple occasions.

Bullock was fired from the Collier County Sheriff's Office after his arrest.
