BOISE – Reuben Delgadillo, a former Caldwell police officer and school resource officer, was sentenced today to serve three to 10 years in prison for felony injury to a child.

Delgadillo, 27, pleaded guilty on June 1 to one count of injury to a child. By pleading guilty, Delgadillo admitted that while serving on a school expulsion board, he developed a sexual relationship with a male student while mentoring the child, according to the Idaho Attorney General's office.

Delgadillo was employed with the Caldwell Police Department and assigned to the Caldwell School District as a school resource officer.

Third District Judge Thomas Ryan also ordered Delgadillo to pay $5,000 in civil penalties, according to Idaho Attorney General Lawrence Wasden. The court suspended the prison sentence and retained jurisdiction for 365 days.

The Attorney General’s Special Prosecutions Unit conducted the prosecution at the request of the Canyon County Prosecutor’s Office.
