BROCKTO — A retired Quincy police officer has been freed on bail after pleading not guilty to child rape.

Anthony Courage of Hanover was released on $5,000 bail after entering his plea last week in Brockton Superior Court to charges including rape of a child with force and rape and abuse of a child aggravated by age difference.

The alleged victim was 3 and 4 years old at the time. The last alleged assault took place in December.

The 73-year-old Courage has denied the charges.

The Patriot Ledger reports that he turned himself in in May.
