Bourque was arrested in April after investigators said they found thousands of images and videos on a laptop in his office. State police investigators had also secured a warrant to search his home for computers, disks, flash drives, SD cards, cell phones and other electronic evidence, according to an arrest warrant.

The marijuana was found inside a safe in the master bedroom, the warrant states.

Bourque is the head of the North Central Municipal Regional Accident Reconstruction Team, which was initially in charge of the Oct. 29 fatal accident involving Windsor Locks police Officer Michael Koistinen and 15-year-old Henry Dang.

State police took over the investigation because of concerns that the accident was not investigated properly. State police arrested Michael Koistinen on manslaughter charges and his father, Robert Koistinen, on obstruction of justice charges.

State police are investigating Bourque for his role in that investigation. Sources say that authorities suspected that Bourque had been drinking alcohol that night and instructed him to leave less than 30 minutes after he arrived at the scene in Windsor Locks.

The child pornography investigation was separate from the accident investigation, police said. The pornography investigation started March 11 after Bourque shared folders containing pornographic images with an undercover state police officer.
