— LEWISBURG — Agents from the Attorney General's Child Predator Unit, assisted by the state police, have arrested a state police trooper now accused of using a computer webcam to send a nude and sexually explicit video to who he believed was a 13-year old girl.

Acting Attorney General Bill Ryan identified the defendant as Douglas Nick Sversko, 43, of 216 Lamplight Lane, Lewisburg.

Ryan said that Sversko, a Pennsylvania State Trooper, used an internet chat room to approach an undercover agent from the Child Predator Unit who was using the online profile of a teenage girl. After complimenting the agent about her profile photo and acknowledging her age,

Sversko allegedly indicated that he was not wearing any clothing, stating, "naked is comfy," and, "I am not afraid to tell you that I'm naked and attracted to you."

According to the complaint, Sversko then sent the agent a link to his computer webcam and proceeded to transmit a lengthy video that showed him nude and dancing in front of his computer. Sversko then asked the "girl" if she enjoyed the video and if she had been sexually aroused.

Ryan said that Sversko is accused of closing the online chat by cautioning the girl to keep their encounter secret, telling her, "Make sure you delete our conversation," and, "we don't really want mom to read about this."
