ALBANY, N.Y. -- State Police have arrested a former Albany police officer accused of sexual abuse.

State Police say Paul Pierce, 58, of East Greenbush, sexually abused a boy over the past two years at Pierce's home, at a house in Albany and at a camp in Chestertown. He's been charged with criminal sexual act and endangering the welfare of a child.

Pierce was arraigned and is being held at Albany County Jail.

State police say there maybe be other victims and they urge parents to talk with their children if they have had contact with Pierce.

Pierce was with the Albany Police Department until he retired in 2002.
