A former Nolensville police officer pleaded guilty in Williamson County court Friday of charges of official misconduct and solicitation for tampering with evidence.

Charles Terry was sentenced to four years of probation, assessed a $1,000 fine, can't work in law enforcement and can't contact the victim.

Investigators said they found evidence that Terry solicited and received inappropriate images of a minor female on his cell phone in 2012 and 2013.

Terry allegedly tried to have the child's cell phone destroyed, according to the TBI.

Terry resigned from the Nolensville Police Department in May 2013.
