2016 Cop Pedophile Lowell Steven Waddell

April 05--GREENUP A former Greenup police officer is facing multiple charges, including four counts of incest and three counts of first-degree sexual abuse.

Lowell Steven Waddell is facing 11 charges in all including possession of matter portraying a sexual performance by a minor and promoting sexual performance by a minor.

Greenup Commonwealth's Attorney Mel Leonhart told a local television station that Waddell is accused of sexually abusing a relative who was younger than 16. Kentucky State Police are leading the investigation.

The abuse allegedly happened between August 2012 and May 2013 after Waddell no longer served on the Greenup Police Department.

Waddell was let go more than 10 years ago and his departure had nothing to do with any sort of behavior related to these charges, according to Greenup City Attorney Steve McGinnis.

Waddell lives in Greenup, but was arrested in Charleston by West Virginia State Police. He's lodged in the South Central Regional Jail. He is due in court Wednesday in West Virginia.

Bond was set at $150,000 cash.
